The author argues for acceptance of the geographical environment as the basic object of study in geography.
 This environment is defined as nature that has undergone change as a result of man's activities. The author contends that some Soviet geographers still base their views on the now outmoded Stalinist definition of the geographical environment as the "environment surrounding man" or "external nature." According to DESCRIPTORS: *Geography, Philosophy.

The author defends V. A. Anuchin's efforts to develop the theory of unity of geography based on Marxist-Leninist philosophy. Konovalenko finds that Americans are closely following the theoretical discussion in Soviet geography because they, too, are supposedly searching for a methodological foundation of a unified geography.
He holds that Soviet geography, by developing such a theory on a Marxist basis, can win followers within the
